

Publication 862 Sales and Use Tax Classifications of Capital Improvements and Repairs to Real Property

About This Publication

Publication 862 provides contractors and their customers (property owners) sales and compensating use tax guidance for distinguishing between a capital improvement to real property and repairs, maintenance, or installation services to real property. For this purpose, we include a list of various activities with respect to real property and identify them as either a capital improvement or a repair, maintenance, or installation service.

If a contractor does a capital improvement for a customer and the customer provides the contractor with a properly completed Form ST-124, Certificate of Capital Improvement, no sales tax is required to be collected from the customer. On the other hand, when a contractor performs a job that constitutes a repair, maintenance, or installation service to real property, sales tax must be collected from the customer, unless the contractor receives a properly completed Form ST-119.1, Exempt Organization Certification, or other applicable exemption document.

In determining whether a job is a capital improvement, please keep in mind that the installation of certain items listed as capital improvements on the following pages may not qualify as a capital improvement if the items are installed by a commercial tenant as a trade fixture.

As a general rule, a contractor must pay sales tax to its supplier when it purchases tangible personal property. It does not matter whether the tangible personal property will be used in performing a capital improvement or a repair, maintenance, or installation service.

If you have questions about the material presented in this publication, please refer to the back cover of this publication for the appropriate address or telephone number to contact for more information.

Part I - General Information

Tax on building materials

As a general rule, if you are a contractor or a property owner, you must pay sales tax on your purchases of building materials, unless some exemption applies, in which case you must provide an exemption certificate or other document to the supplier which indicates that no tax is imposed or required to be collected when the building materials are purchased.

Frequently used exemption documents

Instead of receiving a tax payment, suppliers may accept certain exemption documents. Examples of frequently used exemption documents and from whom they may be accepted are:

From contractors

- Form ST-120.1, Contractor Exempt Purchase Certificate
- Form AU-297, Direct Payment Permit

From exempt organizations

- Form ST-119.1, Exempt Organization Certification

From farmers and commercial horse boarding operations

- Form ST-125, Farmers and Commercial Horse Boarding Operations Exemption Certificate (For information on the newly expanded exemptions applicable to farmers and commercial horse boarding operations enacted by Chapter 407 of the Laws of 1999, please see TSB-M-00(8)S.)

From a Qualified Empire Zone Enterprise (QEZE)

-Form ST-121.6, Qualified Empire Zone Enterprise (QEZE) Exempt Purchase Certificate (For information on sales and use tax exemptions afforded to a QEZE enacted by Chapter 63 of the Laws of 2000, please see TSB-M-01(1)S.)

From retailers

- Form ST-120, Resale Certificate

From New York State and its political subdivisions and the United States and its agencies

-Government Purchase Orders

90 day rule for exemption documents

If you are a contractor or supplier who makes a sale of services or building materials that is exempt from tax, you must have a properly completed exemption document in your possession no later than 90 days after the service is rendered or you will be required to collect tax and the purchaser will need to file a claim for refund of the tax with the Tax Department.

Services to real property

Services to real property are classified as either a capital improvement or a repair, maintenance or installation service. Installation services include the installation of tangible personal property which remains tangible personal property after its installation.

Real property

The term real property means real property, property or land as defined in the Real Property Tax Law and includes but is not limited to:

- land and vegetation growing on the land such as trees, shrubs, bushes, and grass;
- buildings and structures erected upon, under, or above land, or affixed to the land;
- utility lines, wires, and poles;
- mains, pipes and tanks for conducting steam, heat, water, oil, gas, and electricity; and
- boilers, heating, ventilating, lighting apparatus, and plumbing.

Tangible personal property

The term tangible personal property means corporeal personal property of any nature having a material existence and perceptibility to the human senses including but not limited to materials, tools, equipment and supplies.

Capital improvement

A capital improvement is an addition or alteration to real property that:

- substantially adds to the value of the real property, or appreciably prolongs the useful life of the real property;
- becomes part of the real property or is permanently affixed to the real property so that removal would cause material damage to the property or article itself; and
- is intended to become a permanent installation.

However, the addition of a mobile home to real property is never a capital improvement, regardless of how it is installed.

For special rules regarding when the installation of a floor covering constitutes a capital improvement, see page 15.

In the case of a capital improvement, if you are a property owner who:

- purchases materials and supplies only and you perform your own labor, you pay tax to the supplier on the materials and supplies.
- purchases materials and supplies and hires a contractor to perform the labor, you pay tax to the supplier on the materials and supplies, but you do not pay tax to the contractor for the labor.
- purchases materials and supplies and labor from the contractor, you pay no tax.

In the case of a capital improvement, if you are a contractor who purchases materials and supplies, you pay tax to the supplier and you do not collect any sales tax from your customer.

Leasehold improvements

As a general rule, additions or alterations to real property for or by a tenant with respect to leased premises are presumed to be temporary in nature. Consequently, they do not qualify as capital improvements. However, these additions or alterations may qualify as capital improvements if there is a demonstrated intention to make them permanent (assuming the other qualifications are met). For example, an intention of permanence would be demonstrated by a provision in the building lease indicating that immediately upon installation title to the installation vests with the lessor and the installed property is to remain with the premises after the termination of the lease.

If a lease does not contain these provisions, other factors such as the nature of the installation, or written agreements other than a lease provision may be considered in determining the intention of the parties with respect to the permanence of the installation. Please see TSB-M-83(17)S for further information on leasehold improvements.

Repair and maintenance

Repair and maintenance relates to keeping real property in a condition of fitness, efficiency, readiness and/or safety or to restoring it to such condition.

In the case of a job that constitutes repair or maintenance, if you are a property owner who:

- purchases materials and supplies only and performs your own labor, you pay tax to the supplier on the materials and supplies.
- purchases materials and supplies and hires a contractor to perform the labor, you pay tax to the supplier on the materials and supplies and to the contractor for the labor.
- purchases materials and supplies and labor from a contractor, you pay tax to the contractor on the total charge.

In the case of a job that constitutes repair or maintenance, if you are a contractor who:

- purchases materials, you pay tax to the supplier, even though you are also required to collect tax from your customer. However, you are entitled to a refund or credit of the tax that you paid on the materials that you transferred to the customer.
- purchases supplies, you pay tax to the supplier.

Installation services are services related to setting up tangible personal

If you are a contractor who installs items such as washing machines, clothes dryers, dishwashers, refrigerators, furniture, etc., which when installed or placed in real property do not become part of the real property, you must collect tax on your charge for the installation. The individual charge for any of these items is also taxable as the sale of tangible personal property.
