New York Tax Treatment of Interest Income
on Federal, State and Municipal Bonds and Obligations

The taxation of interest income for New York State and New York City personal income tax purposes generally conforms to the federal income tax treatment. However, there are exceptions in the case of certain bonds and obligations issued by the United States government, its possessions and agencies, and by states other than New York and their political subdivisions and agencies. The interest income on these bonds and obligations may be taxable for federal purposes but not for New York purposes or vice-versa.

Interest income that is exempt from federal income tax but subject to New York income tax must be added to federal adjusted gross income in computing New York adjusted gross income. (Sections 612(b) (1) and (b) (2) of the Tax Law.) Interest income that is subject to federal income tax but exempt from New York income tax must be subtracted from federal adjusted gross income in computing New York adjusted gross income. (Sections 612(c) (1) and (c) (2) of the Tax Law.) An addition or subtraction modification is not required if the interest income is exempt from both federal and New York income taxes.

The above additions and subtractions also apply to any interest income received from a mutual fund, unless the fund is a regulated investment company.<sup>1</sup> If the fund is a regulated investment company, the following rules apply:

<sup>1</sup> Regulated Investment Companies are defined in section 851 of the Internal Revenue Code. Most mutual funds are regulated investment companies under that section. If you are not sure of the status of a particular fund, you should contact the fund or your investment advisor.

- (1) The addition modification must always be made for the portion of a dividend received by the taxpayer that is attributable to interest earned by the fund on obligations that are exempt from federal income tax but subject to New York income tax.
- (2) The subtraction modification applies only if the fund meets the 50% "U.S. Obligations" asset requirement under section 612(c) (1) of the Tax Law. If this requirement is met, the subtraction must be made for the portion of a dividend received by the taxpayer that is attributable to interest earned by the fund on obligations that are subject to federal income tax but exempt from New York income tax.<sup>2</sup>

The following updated list, which is not all inclusive, indicates whether the interest income on certain bonds and obligations is subject to New York tax. In addition, those obligations marked with an asterisk (*) are deemed to be "U.S. Obligations" for purposes of determining whether a regulated investment company meets the 50% asset test previously described.

<sup>2</sup> A regulated investment company which meets the 50% asset requirement is required to send a written notice to its investors telling them the portion of the dividend which is subject to the subtraction modification. For more information concerning the 50% asset requirement, see TSB-M-86-(7)I, TSB-M-92-(4)I and section 112.3(a) of the Personal Income Tax Regulations.
